Republican Party addresses treasurer selection controversy

by J.D. Stetson

The Hot Springs County Republican Party Central Committee met Monday night to address the process used to select three qualified candidates submitted to Hot Springs County Commissioners for the commission's choice of appointment to the vacant county treasurer's elected office.

Chairman Mike Gular presided over the meeting. Other voting members of the committee present included Mike Baker, Phyllis Baker, Ellen Galyan, Joyce Kelley, Robin Kruse, Warren Kruse and Jerry Williams. Charles Curley, who is a nonvoting member, acted as secretary.

The committee has received public backlash based around controversy concerning the process and perceived conflict of interests by committee members.

Much of the fallout from the selection was that Deputy Treasurer Julie Mortimore was not selected as one of the three candidates.

During the discussion, the committee addressed the need for openness with regard to the process, making rules to prevent future perceived conflicts of interest and the continued need for public participation in the party.

Prior meetings

During the meeting, the committee approved minutes from a Nov. 19 meeting where Gular and Lorraine Quarberg recused themselves from the selection process because they intended to seek the appointment. Neither had any involvement in the selection process.

According to minutes of the committee's special meeting Jan. 12, the committee went into executive session until noon. It broke for lunch and then resumed the meeting in executive session at 1 p.m. The committee left executive session at about 2 p.m. and then underwent four paper secret ballots. One of the ballots was to break a tie.

After the ballots were counted, the committee nominated Gular, Isabelle Willson and Quarberg for consideration by the commissioners.

At the commissioners' meeting Jan. 15, again by secret ballot, the commissioners voted to accept the results of the secret ballot and appoint Willson to the office.

During Monday's central committee meeting, Mike Baker, who also holds a seat on the commission, clarified that because the commissioners' vote was by secret ballot it is unknown what candidate each commissioner voted to appoint, but that at least two of them voted in favor of Willson. The vote to accept the results of the ballot and appoint Willson was unanimous.

Open process

Since the news of the appointment was reported last week, members of the committee, including Gular, have been "taking heat" for the selection.

Gular said he thinks the selection process should have followed the example of the state process to find nominees for a new state treasurer and under-

Hospital districting bill passes Senate committee

by J.D. Stetson

Senate File 19, a bill introduced by Sen. Gerald Geis (SD20, R-Worland), passed its first hurdle in the State Legislature.

The bill would allow county commissioners, by resolution, to place the issue of creating a special hospital district on the ballot for the public to decide.

In a meeting of the Corporations, Elections and Political Subdivisions Senate Committee Thursday, Jan. 17, five legislators voted to move the bill to the Senate floor.

According to the bill status report available on the legislature's website, the bill passed first reading on the floor of the Senate Monday. The bill must be read three times before it goes to the House of Representatives and starts the committee process again.

Hot Springs County Memorial Hospital and the hospital's Board of Trustees asked Geis to introduce the bill in order to streamline and clear requirements for the issue to go before the voters in the county.

Currently, state law requires approval from entities responsible for 25 percent of the assessed valuation and approval from 25 percent of the property taxpayers before the issue can be placed on the ballot.

The hospital has determined the formation of a district is a necessary step in order for the hospital to build a new facility and provide health care for Hot Springs County into the future.

CEO Robin Roling was in attendance during the committee hearing and reported the committee had a good discussion about the merits of the bill. She also said County Clerk Hans Odde spoke during the hearing along with a Goshen County commissioner.

The Senate committee members all voted in the affirmative for the bill. The members include Sen. John Hines of Campbell County, Sen. Cale Case of Fremont County, Sen. Wayne Johnson of Goshen/Laramie County, Sen. Leslie Nutting of Laramie County and Sen. Charles Scott of Natrona County.

Roling said Scott noted the benefits of a district to rural areas — given the continued declines in federal revenues to local hospitals and health care.

Johnson also said he has worked in the past toward formation of a hospital district for Goshen County and thought the bill was brought to the legislature for good reasons, Roling said.

The committee made one amendment to the bill regarding subsequent elections. The amendment simply states that subsequent special hospital district elections created under the bill shall be held as provided in the Special District Elections Act of 1994.

Roling said the amendment could make the bill stronger for passage in the legislature.

Through the voters, the bill allows local decision-making and local control over the service of health care in the county. Roling thinks the local aspect of the bill would bode well when it is debated in the State House of Representatives.

Chamber hires new executive director

The Thermopolis-Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce Board of Trustees has announced its choice for executive director.

The board chose Amanda Moeller to fill the vacant post that became open after Michelle Lue resigned in October.

Board President Meri Ann Rush said Moeller grew up in Thermopolis and she is excited to relocate back to her hometown from Casper.

Rush said Moeller has several good ideas and brings with her experience in nonprofit grant writing and raising revenue for nonprofit entities.

Moeller graduated from Hot Springs County High School in 1995 and attended Laramie County Community College and Casper College. She is currently working toward her bachelor of arts degree from the University of Wyoming.

"This is a wonderful opportunity to return to the community I called home," Moeller said.

Moeller is scheduled for her first day as executive director on Feb. 14. She is currently working as a community development technician for the City of Casper.

She looks forward to the challenge of helping Thermopolis grow and discovering the role of the chamber in the community.

"It takes time to get into a position and trying to figure out what your role is," Moeller said.

Moeller said she looks forward to discovering the working out the expectations of the board of directors and to talking to people in the community as the new face of the chamber.

Trustees consider school start time changes

by Cindy Glasson

While the Hot Springs County School District No. 1 board of trustees covered a lot of ground at its Jan. 17 meeting, a good portion was spent discussing the possibility of changing the school start times for the 2013-14 school year.

Board members have been visiting with parents of elementary students, and one of the main concerns with those parents is the length of the school day for their children.

Currently, all schools in Hot Springs County begin at 8 a.m. and release at 3:45 p.m. According to Superintendent Dustin Hunt, that is well over the state requirements for hours in class.

One suggestion the board discussed would be to have the elementary and middle schools start at 8:30 a.m. and the high school at 8:20 a.m. That would eliminate the concern about the length of day for elementary students.

Teachers, however, would still be required to be at the school by 7:30 a.m. for preparation and collaboration. This would also make the teachers available for students needing some extra help.

At the high school, the suggested change would add three minutes to each class period.

The board did not take any action on the proposed time change, but would like to have a solution by its February meeting.

Policy approval

The board approved two policies on third and final reading — JJID, regarding student physicals, and BEE-R, pertaining to the rules of practice governing hearings and contested cases.

Policy JJID changes the wording of the student physicals policy slightly, adding "provider" to the policy alongside physician. This will allow students who participate in athletics to have their physicals signed off on by nurse practitioners and the like rather than strictly by a physician.

Approval of Policy BEE-R replaces Article IV, the rules for determining the eligibility of students for the free and reduced-price school lunch, breakfast and milk programs. The change is to put into effect the federal rules regulating the procedure.

Superintendent's report

In place of his usual superintendent's report, Hunt instead asked the board to keep an eye on several bills coming up in the Wyoming House and Senate that relate to schools.

The first is House Bill (HB) 144, which relates to kindergarten readiness, early childhood development and early literacy development. The act would provide for development of policy and a system structure through statewide consensus discussions and prescribe duties of daycare facilities and other pre-school entities.

HB 159 pertains to Wyoming teacher employment law, specifying the procedures applicable to hearings on contested teacher employment decisions. It also modifies the grounds for teacher suspensions or dismissals.

HB 164 is related to school financing, eliminating the moratorium imposed on alternative schools in regard to block grant funding. While the bill is subject to specific conditions, it does grant rulemaking authority.

HB 166 will be of particular interest to parents of high school students. The act would increase the amount of the Hathaway scholarships from $40 to $80 in an attempt to defray some of the rising costs of a college education.

HB 177 also relates to the Hathaway scholarships, modifying the requirements for the various levels of the success curriculum. It also makes changes in the application process and clarifies the use of curriculum waivers.

On the senate side, Senate File (SF) 95 could modify high school graduation requirements as imposed by the state board of education. In turn, it would modify the success curriculum required for the various levels of the Hathaway scholarship program.

SF 96 would modify the compulsory school attendance requirements for students in all grades.

gone the process in an open meeting instead of an executive session.

Robin Kruse agreed the process should have been open. With regard to Mortimore, Kruse argued that because it was a closed process, Mortimore wouldn't know if she was treated with equal and fair weight.

"She deserves to know why she didn't make the cut," Kruse said.

Mike Baker explained that historically the committee has chosen to treat the nominations as a personnel matter because candidates did not want their current employers to know they were seeking an elected office. He also said the closed meeting also allows the candidates to be more open during interviews.

Since 1987, the committee has undertaken the same process approximately 10 times.

The "lightning rod" in this instance was that it was the first time a sitting deputy applied and did not make it through the process, Baker said.

voted for to make it onto the list of three candidates.

Public comments

Chuck Carver spoke about his disappointment in the lack of participation by the public and about the misconception among some people that Gular had anything to do with the selection process.

Laurie Harvey voiced her disappointment that Mortimore did not make the short list. She said the committee members who should have recused themselves should learn the definition of ethics.

Harold Hutson voiced determination to "set things right" and to go back through the process. The committee explained there is not a mechanism in the rules or the law to allow the process to be redone.

Marianne Gular spoke with regard to the difference between a public office holder and an employee, and that the process should have been open to public scrutiny just as if the applicants were running for election.

Rule changes

After hearing from the four concerned citizens at the meeting, the committee chose to appoint a subcommittee to develop new by-law changes addressing nepotism and perceived conflicts of interest in the future.

The bylaw changes cannot be made until the next Republican Party County Convention expected to take place in March 2014.

The committee also discussed the possibility of instituting interim rules in the meantime in the event the committee must undertake the nomination process again between now and the convention.

Part of the meeting also addressed the lack of participation in the party and the political process by members of the public. The committee discussed the ways in which people can be involved by attending the party meetings, the county caucus, the convention, running for a precinct or simply asking questions.
