Mr. Helie presented some documents in regards to the funding of the 4-H program stating the Admin position is key to connecting the community to resources. Commissioner Galovich inquired if the admin position can be seasonal or part time. Mrs. Peil stated yes it could be an option. Commissioner Aguiar stated he has been to the office in June about 6 times and it was closed with no signs on the doors, and stated the issue is the County does not have the funds this year. Commissioner Galovich stated savings from the GIS agreement may be applied to the local programs. Mr. Stam stated the Admin can be out of the office due to official County business. Comments were received from the public. Sharon Cordingly inquired about the Only Co agreement on the Agenda, the Commissioners stated that agreement is being paid for by a federal grant, not the County budget. Mandy Wilson is in support of 4-H and requested the Commissioners think outside the box, possibly giving up a part of their salary. John Waid is in support of 4-H stating if the kids do not have a positive direction they will get into trouble. Cindy Toth inquired about every department budget cuts. Mariam Erkinbaeva is in support of 4-H and thinks it is good for homeschooled kids. Shane Rankin, Road and Bridge, wanted to inform everyone, the employees of the County took a cut as well not only the department budgets. Larry Bentley stated it appears to him the cuts are directed at agricultural. Mrs. Peil asked about how to move forward, Chairman Ryan stated the proposal needs to be sent to Clerk Kersten. Amy Culbreath inquired about why the County forgave the fines from the Tipi Retreat Lawsuit. Commissioner Galovich stated it was a settlement for the case not to be appealed to the Supreme Court. Shurie Scheel stated the County budget was negatively impacted by property tax cuts passed by the Wyoming Legislator this last session, property taxes are collected in the County and distributed in the County.

Discussion of Fair Budget – Fair Board representatives presented a chart to the Commissioners regarding the Fair budget and changes they will enforce to continue to operate the facility. Beware of scams

A group of community members listen as Hot Springs County Sheriff's Deputy Casey Freund discusses how to identify fraud and what to do if you've been compromised at the fraud prevention workshop at the library July 8.

Fraud prevention workshop

by Annie Hayslip

A small but lively group joined a fraud prevention workshop at the Hot Springs County Library on July 8th. Tia Gillespie and Kayte Collamer, both from Central Bank & Trust, handed out a wealth of information, as well as snacks and drinks, as people settled in. Patrol Sargeant Casey Freund from the Hot Springs County Sheriff's Office, led the talk. Starting in April, Lisa Brown, who head's up Adult Librarian Services, coordinated with Gillespie and Collamer, to create this event.

Freund led the talk and defined several types of scams, including skimming (credit card information theft), through email, and phone calls (spoofing) as common ways people may encounter fraud attempts. "It's very easy to download a virus and let it install," Freund said of email links people might receive. The more common phishing scam is through phone calls. Spoofing calls can range from "winning" something to the use of family member names to extort money for a phony emergency.

"Urgency is the thing to watch out for," Freund says, followed by "If it's too good to be true, it's too good to be true." With a variety of pamphlets, including what to watch out for and who to contact if fraud has been attempted or successful, attendees walked away with great information and a sense of comfort with the knowledge gained from the workshop.

Discovery Days was created, planned, and executed entirely by volunteers. While Dominguez says it's a lot of work not only during the event but throughout the year in planning, there isn't anything else she would rather be doing.

"We need events like this," she said, already thinking about planning for next year. "I'm super grateful for our volunteers - we have an amazing team." Volunteer ages range from 30s to 80s, suggesting that everyone in town wants to be part of the community. "The heart in the community that comes together to put this on" is what keeps Dominguez going.

Because of her dedication to Thermopolis, Dominguez started a non-profit to help fund Discovery Days in the years to come. Her plans are to schedule the second weekend of July for 2026 and will have plenty of fun ways the community can help support this event.

All in all, the people in and around Thermopolis got a full weekend of Wyoming Basin's music, food, and fun. For more information on Wyoming Discovery Days and to help support, visit wyoming-discoverydays.com.
